

CMPT 363: Assignment 4 Prototype README

Trip 16 by Team 16: Hans Kim, Jun Huang, Jason Xu, Daniel Peng, and Wen Xuan Xie

This is an app prototype composed by Axure which helps build and manage your schedule upon your travel. The main functions implemented to the app are consisted of creating a travel plan, as well as adding, editing, and changing an activity of an existing plan. The same goes for another planning technique which the user develop a plan based on others posted on the app.

This README file will demonstrate you the ways to complete the tasks with the app according to the task requirements in Assignment 3. Please follow the instructions of the tasks to be done to get the best experience of the project.

Restrictions

- The adding, editing, and changing function are not available for the task of building plan from others because those functions will be demonstrated under the making new plan section.
- The filter and sort for searches are not implemented in this app due to Axure's technical limitations.
- The app does not message user of wrong case and input due to the matter of time.

1. Start and Home Page

- To begin using the app, go to "iPhone Frame" page and use Axure's preview to run the prototype. You will get the simulated experience of using our prototype on an iPhone.
- You should get a Trip 16 starting screen as a start of your preview, the app will direct you to the home page automatically. The home page contains a slide show and a list of pinned plans.
- You can view details of "Vancouver to Tokyo" plan by pressing the "edit" icon at the right of that plan bar. The app will direct you to a page of activates that are in the plan. You can scroll across the page to see all activities. To return to Home page, press the top left arrow icon.

2. Create a new plan
